

Opima signs agreement to acquire Laserkeskus Oy

14 October 2026

Opima is a group of specialist companies offering services such as component manufacturing, maintenance and repair, and automation to the manufacturing industry. The companies operate independently but develop through various forms of collaboration. Opima is active in Sweden and Norway with an ambition to establish a presence across the entire Nordic region.

Opima has now signed an agreement to acquire Laserkeskus Oy, marking its expansion into Finland. Laserkeskus is a well-established contract manufacturer in metal processing founded in 2003, based in Laitila, north of Turku. The company provides customised solutions across a broad range of services including laser cutting, machining, press braking and welding. Laserkeskus works with steel, aluminium and demanding special materials, serving customers in southern and western Finland. The company holds ISO 9001:2015, ISO 14001:2015 and ISO 3834-2 certifications.

A key strength of Laserkeskus is its ability to handle a wide spectrum of metal manufacturing – from simpler components to large, complex welded structures. Through successive investments in machinery and welding capacity, the company is able to produce components with increasing added value and serve customers with high demands on technical complexity and quality.

With well-maintained premises and a modern, well-invested machine park, Laserkeskus is well-positioned for continued growth. The company has a broad and diversified customer base of approximately 300 active B2B customers in sectors including lifting equipment, agriculture, forestry, defence and off-highway.

As part of Opima, Laserkeskus will continue to operate as an independent entity under its existing management. The company's technical expertise and broad customer base complement Opima's existing offering well and create opportunities for collaboration within the group.

The transaction is subject to approval by relevant competition authorities.

"Laserkeskus has built a strong position in metal processing in Finland over more than twenty years. Our strength lies in our technical expertise, our flexibility and our ability to handle complex assignments with high quality. With Opima as owner, we gain better conditions to grow and continue investing in our operations, while retaining our local roots and culture." comments Sami Mäki, CEO of Laserkeskus Oy.

"We are very impressed by the technical breadth and dedication at Laserkeskus. The company is well-established, has a strong market position in Finland and complements Opima's capabilities in an excellent way. We also see exciting opportunities for collaboration with other companies in the Opima group. A warm welcome to Opima!" says Johan Karlsson, CEO of Opima.
